

Here Are 10 of the Best Sports Bars to Watch the Super Bowl at Across the U.S.

QUICKLY

- Don't feel like going to a Super Bowl party this year? From Honolulu to Arlington, Yelp has provided us with 10 of the best sports bars across the U.S., complete with an overwhelming number of television screens to watch the Big Game on.

Don't feel like making small talk with strangers at someone else's Super Bowl party this year? No worries—we've asked Yelp to compile a list of some of the best sports bars across America. Your local spot will likely not be on this list—there are only 10, and they span the entire U.S., from Honolulu to Arlington, but if you happen to be in one of these cities for the Big Game, and are a fan of an overwhelming amount of television screens and bar food, one of these will satisfy your cravings.

While we would have loved to hit and rank all of these spots on our own (especially the one in Hawaii!) we had to defer to research experts at Yelp, who used the following methodology to come up with this list: "All the businesses on this list are in the 'sports bar' category on Yelp and are not a large chain. "Best" is measured using an algorithm that looks at the number of reviews and star rating for a business. To ensure geographic diversity, only two businesses per state were included in the list."

Sample Yelp Review: (from Jimmy B.): "Sunday football is big here. Seating is wherever you'd like and what's available. We were lucky to get a table right off the bat. Both of the waitresses that served us were great and friendly. Although they didn't give their names, they made sure that we got our orders in, our drinks were filled or replaced, and asked if we had any questions. I recommend splitting one of the iron fries. It's a pretty hefty amount for one person. I'd definitely come back here."
